

Switching from paper-based exams to Cambridge English Qualifications Digital

Staatliche Realschule Ebersberg, Munich

About the school

Staatliche Realschule Ebersberg is a secondary school in Bavaria, Germany that has embraced the transition from paper-based exams to digital by integrating Cambridge English Qualifications Digital as an optional extra class for students.

In collaboration with Cambridge Institut, a certified Cambridge English exam centre, the school has successfully implemented digital exams that offer flexibility, efficiency, and a familiar environment for students as the exams are taken in the school.

Delivering digital exams together: Staatliche Realschule Ebersberg and Cambridge Institut

The relationship between Staatliche Realschule Ebersberg and Cambridge Institut is built on clear communication and mutual support. From the initial planning stages, both parties worked closely to ensure a smooth implementation of our digital exams. The school provides the necessary IT infrastructure, while the exam centre offers technical guidance and ongoing support.

I would recommend Cambridge English Qualifications Digital to other schools because it has many benefits for the school itself and the students of course.

A smooth digital exam experience

The Inpera platform, used to deliver the exams, is described as straightforward to install and manage. Dedicated staff are available to assist with IT setup and exam day logistics, ensuring a seamless experience for both staff and students to ensure a preferred exam experience.

Students prepared using online resources from the Cambridge website and sat the exams in familiar IT rooms, contributing to a calm and confident atmosphere.

Celebrating student achievement

To recognise students' achieving B1 Preliminary, the school organised a certificate ceremony, celebrating their success and highlighting the value of internationally recognised qualifications in motivating learners and supporting their academic journey.
